

Employee Benefits in France

Group Health, Group Term Life and Pension schemes

France has a specific and dense regulations and rules, special programs and labor agreements when it comes to Social Protection and Employee Benefits. Globally, the French Social Security system is made of 5 branches:

1. Health insurance = Assurance Maladie
2. Family = Allocations Familiales
3. Retirement (pension) = Assurance Retraite
4. Occupational injuries and & Illnesses = Accident du Travail et Maladies Professionnelles
5. Long Term Care insurance (Old-Age Ins.) = Dépendance

Employees and Companies contribute directly to fund the respective schemes. In addition, Companies complete the national Health and Retirement schemes in term of benefits with Complementary benefits to Executive and Non-Executive workers.

In terms of minimum benefits and funding structures, Complementary schemes follow Global and Sector level rules (or at company level for the biggest ones).

Here are the three compulsory – or at least recommended – corporate Employee Benefits companies need to provide:

1. Group Health (Complémentaire Santé): Complementing the national Health insurance scheme
2. Group Life (Prévoyance) : Group Term Life including Death or Permanent Incapacity benefits and complementing the Health scheme too
3. Pension (Retraite Complémentaire): Completing the national Retirement scheme

Group Health (Complémentaire Santé)

Group Health aims at covering medical costs of the employees when not reimbursed by the National Health Insurance scheme.

- Although already compulsory in many sectors and medium and large companies, complementary Group Health is now a made compulsory by law since January 2016 (loi ANI) for both Executive and Non-Executive workers.
- Since, all private-sector employers in France – regardless their size and sector – are required to enroll all employees in a supplementary Group Health policy that provides specified minimum coverage and – at the same time – respects maximum benefit limits (in order to control the cost and ensure the funding).

	Dental care
	Routine care

Minimal package of social guarantees

- Employers are required to fund at least 50 percent of the premium cost for the employee-only minimum coverage.
- Scheme usually offer additional optional levels for the employees and the family. Companies can – or not – support part of the optional benefits.
- Benefit can vary between Executive et Non executive employees
- Rates apply on the total wages of both population.

Group Life (Prévoyance)

Thanks to a financial compensation, this insurance contract helps covering the employee and their family in case incapacity or death.

- It includes income protection, critical illness & life insurance all together.
- Strong guarantees are granted to beneficiaries at lower cost.
- Rates are based on the status of the employee (executive or non-executives), age and medical profile.

Group life is not mandatory but it enables to benefit from important fiscal and social advantages for both employer and employee on their respective contribution.

- On the one hand, contributions are deductible from corporate tax and exempt from employers' social security contributions.
- On the other hand, contributions are deductible from income tax – under certain conditions – for the employee.

Pension (Complémentaire Retraite)

French retirement system comprises three levels:

- Public pensions,
- Occupational pensions
- Additional (or personal) pension.

The first level is funded predominantly by payroll taxes derived from social security contributions. Occupational pension schemes come in addition to the public pension. All employees are members of compulsory supplementary plans making this private retirement income almost compulsory. The funds are financed according to the pay-as-you-go system based on employer and employee contributions.

In order to encourage individual savings many French companies have set up Company Savings Plans as a tax-efficient savings product for their employees with the option of an additional employer contribution. That are the so called PERCO (long-term Company Savings Plan), Plan d'Épargne Retraite Entreprises (Company Savings Plan) and Contrat de retraite à prestations définies (Company benefit pension Plan).
